

FROM THE DESK OF

Santa Claus

My Dearest [REDACTED] – You have faced several challenges in the past few years and I am so very proud to see you grow to be a strong girl from all of this. You have many who have passed away but share their love and strength with you every day. You are surrounded by angels and they will watch over you but your voice is still needed to let those around you know the good and the bad that takes place in your day, so don't forget that.

When your mom was your age I passed a similar letter to her, You and your brother have been chosen to help me spread Gods love and joy to the world around you. From this point on I need you both to take care of the underprivileged and uplift those in need. This is a full time endeavor and an honor only a few receive.

A true gift is something that brings warmth to the heart and a smile to the face. It is something that recognizes the good in others and helps someone when needed. The thing is that the "things" we give may not always make a difference. Your job is to "make a difference".

Please don't share your new job with others; this is something between you and me so that the spirit of Christmas and Santa carries on through your good doings all year round. It is time for you to start taking care of others, this could be your family, friends, or even through a charitable organization. This year I gift you something deep in your soul, the gift to serve others and to make an impact on the world around you.

Your mom works hard to love and protect you, remember that she is always close to you to help you whenever you need and she will be right there to assist you on this new position I have granted upon you as she has done this for many before.

God Bless you my child and keep smiling and sharing that smile with everyone around you.

PS – It may not always seem this way but [REDACTED] is your brother, he loves you, and he will be with you through thick and thin. Do the same for him Always and Forever!
